

Dear Jimmy,

I finally got your letter, however I see you forgot I was married as you sent the letter to Bellevue. I am afraid Bob Dylan has not quite hit me yet, although maybe I need to hear him one more time!

Tomorrow night is election night and I imagine you are all set to vote for the candidates of your choice! Actually I will be glad when its over. Gail wants me to help her with her African History wk. right, as if I can be of any help! I am just going to lay around and sleep for a week.

We are having a big election party tomorrow night. McCutcheon, Chasberg & Herrmann are all going in on it. I have decided Herrmann will lose, so now I won't be disappointed. Everyone is so nervous around the campaign office now, it is beginning to bother me.

I have to go to my shorthand class pretty soon, which I enjoy. After tomorrow I will be home all the time, so I can really concentrate on learning my shorthand.

It's been so cold up here lately, I bet it could snow. This weekend we went out doorbelling both days for Democratic Senators. Unless I do the democrats hold the majority in the Senate.

Durkan won't be head of the ways & means committee, & Mike won't have as good a job in the legislature. He will still be working for Durkan however, regardless of the outcome.

Well I better get my things ready to go.

Love,
Mary
